Happy Juneteenth! Happy Pride! Happy almost Independence Day! My goodness, it feels wonderful to celebrate, doesn’t it? June has been a remarkable month of commemorating our country’s progress.

As we get to a place of recognizing that many Americans have long been excluded from the liberty and justice for all part of our pledge of allegiance. We’re slowly righting some painful wrongs, holding one another accountable and expanding our definition of inclusion, diversity, accessibility and equity.

Yes, we still have a good distance to go. As we celebrate these milestones and make plans for our summer vacations it is important to mark the progress that we have made individually and as a nation. After this very long, dark chapter in our history, it feels all the more precious to do so. All the flags, the parades, the relics – the symbols that say to the world, I see YOU. I see and value and celebrate your humanity. Much more of this, please!

All my best,
Maria
